MEMORANDUM OF OBJECTS AND REASONSIntroduction and Context

The swift progression of Information and Communication Technology (ICT) has reshaped the delivery mechanism of services. To tap into the potential of ICT and confirm its effective application, it becomes essential to form a dedicated Authority to supervise the initiation, administration, and integration of ICT infrastructure and systems. The Information and Communication Technology Authority Bill, 2024 proposes to establish such an Authority, by upgrading the ICT Authority already established under an Order into a statutory entity, to ensure it is designated to cultivate secure, efficient, and high-performing ICT services in both the public and private sectors.

Purpose of the Bill

The Information and Communications Technology Authority Bill, 2024.

The principal aim of this Bill is to facilitate the provision of secure, proficient, and high-performing ICT services in the country. The Bill intends to simplify the incorporation of ICT in the process of service delivery, thereby improving accessibility, efficiency, and inclusivity. It also intends to bolster innovation, research, and entrepreneurship within the ICT sector, propelling technological progress and economic expansion. Additionally, the Bill promotes the application of flexible, adaptable, universal, interoperable standards and protocols for integration across varied technologies.

One of the ways to actualize these ideals, is to appropriately set up already existing ICT Authority into a dedicated statutory authority with an overarching role of facilitating deepening of the provision of ICT infrastructure and services.

Establishment and Operation of the ICT Authority

The Bill establishes the ICT Authority as a perpetual corporate entity with a common seal. The Authority is mandated to ensure the availability of its services in all regions of the country.

The responsibilities of the Authority will include designing, implementing, and managing national information and communications technology infrastructure, growing local ICT tech companies with global reach and attract high-value digital investments; providing consultancy services in matters related to information and communications technology services and resources including emerging technologies; implementing security measures for national ICT infrastructure; collaborating with relevant public entities and non-state agencies to enforce cybersecurity measures and proactively monitor potential cybersecurity threats; promoting national digital literacy and ICT skill development; formulating and enforcing National ICT codes of practice and Standards; accrediting ICT service providers and performing any other functions that may be assigned by the Cabinet Secretary, or as may be prescribed by any other written law.

Conditions for deployment of ICT Resources.

The Bill underscores the importance of setting ICT infrastructure standards for the public and private sector. The Cabinet Secretary, in collaboration with the Authority, will establish these standards through notification in the gazette. Public entities will be obliged to conform to these standards in their operations, procurement, and utilization of ICT resources.

The Authority will also develop ICT codes that will serve as references for ICT practices in the Country. These codes will set out minimum standards, encourage consistency and interoperability, and offer standards for securing government data and ICT systems. Public and private entities will be mandated to comply with these codes, and the Authority will develop regulatory measures to encourage adherence. The Bill further addresses the allocation of ICT infrastructure allowances in infrastructure projects and the accreditation of ICT service providers. It also mandates the establishment of a register of accredited service providers.

Other Provisions

The funds of the Authority will comprise monies accruing or vesting in the Authority, other lawful funds, sums allocated by Parliament, and gifts, grants, or donations. The financial year of the Authority will run from July to June, and annual estimates of income and expenditure will be prepared. The accounts of the Authority will be audited in accordance with pertinent laws.

The Cabinet Secretary will have the authority to enact regulations for the improved execution of the Bill. These regulations may include matters such as the establishment of special purpose entities, determination and payment of fees and charges, and any other necessary provisions. The Bill also encompasses provisions for offenses and penalties, transitional and saving provisions, and the annulment of a previous order.

CONSTITUTIONAL STATEMENTS

Statement on the delegation of legislative powers and limitation of fundamental rights and freedoms

The Bill delegates legislative powers to the Cabinet Secretary responsible for matters relating to Information and Communications Technology to make regulations to operationalize the provisions of the Bill upon enactment. The Bill does not contain any provisions limiting any fundamental rights or freedoms.

The Information and Communications Technology Authority Bill, 2024.

Statement as to whether the Bill is a money Bill within the meaning of Article 114 of the Constitution

The Bill is a Money Bill in terms of Article 114 of the Constitution. The enactment of this Bill will occasion additional expenditure of public funds as it seeks the appropriation of monies by the Parliament towards the funds of the Authority.

Statement as to whether the Bill concerns a County Government

This is not a Bill concerning the County Governments within the meaning of Article 110 and of the Fourth Schedule of the Constitution.

Dated....., 2024.
